

LOON LAKE LIVE

SUMMER CONCERT SERIES

2019

About the composer:

Franz Joseph Haydn (1732-1809) was an Austrian composer of the Classical period whose bright, clean compositions embodied the era. He is most known for innovating and formalizing the symphony and string quartet compositional structures. Haydn was also a mentor and teacher of both Mozart and Beethoven. His influence on the Classical era and on the nascent Romantic era can not be underestimated. Today Haydn is celebrated and often referred to as “Papa” for his fatherhood of the symphony and string quartet forms.

About the piece:

String Quartet Op76 #2, nicknamed the “Quinten”, or “Fifths”, was composed in 1797 when Haydn was 65 years old. It is a 4 movement work that is part of his last complete set of string quartets. The Minuet and Vivace movements performed here provide a snapshot into the contrasting characters that are found throughout the whole work. In the outer portions of the Minuet we are treated to a single idea which is doubled with a partner instrument and then pitted against another pair of instruments - in this case the violins are versus the viola and cello - in a game of chase. The middle section, or Trio, is more playful with dynamic contrasts and lighter “chirping” sounds. The Vivace movement is very quick paced with loads of sudden dynamic changes and periodic pauses which gives it a sense of surprise around every corner. This recording is was made in June in Washington DC, Richmond VA, and Denver CO and features new Loon Lake Live cellist Susanna Mendlow in addition to veteran LLL performers Erika Sato and Susanna Klein on violins and Catherine Beeson on viola. Enjoy this new recording with images curated by Mel Aman.
